

PUBLIC PLAYERS & SECRET AGENTS SHAKESPEARE, SPIES AND PUBLIC LIFE IN RENAISSANCE EUROPE

Come Play With Us!

The Making Publics Project at McGill University invites English and History teachers to a workshop exploring our online high school lesson plans

Making Publics in Shakespeare's Playhouse

and

Heretics, Scientists and Spies: Exploring the Renaissance Underworld

Friday, 30 May 2008
University of Toronto

- ❖ Explore how theatre and espionage shaped renaissance society
- ❖ Roleplay renaissance players, playgoers, spies and secret agents
- ❖ Connect renaissance literature and political culture to modern entertainment and public life

To reserve your space please write to maps.schools@mcgill.ca by 1 April 2008

For more information on the Making Publics Project visit our website www.makingpublics.mcgill.ca

For the password to access the Making Publics in Shakespeare's Playhouse lesson plan, write to maps.schools@mcgill.ca. Our new lesson plan, Heretics, Scientists and Spies, will be online Spring 2008.