To Heads of all CAIS Schools:

Re: J.D.Y. Hickman Award

We are very proud to announce that Julia Tufts of King's-Edgehill School is the recipient of this year's J.D.Y. Hickman Award, an annual CAIS award for voluntary service by a student. Julia initiated the creation of a student-led Amnesty International group which developed into Youth-in-Action. The group has raised awareness for international and local areas of need and raised funds to make the changes. Three schools in Kenya have been the beneficiaries of the group's hard work.

We are also pleased to give honourable mention to Christine Moon of Havergal College. Christine is involved in a number of community efforts and has a leadership role in Youth4Water.

Thank you all for your submissions. While the dedication of so many candidates made the selection process difficult, it is inspiring to read how your students are contributing to their communities.

Yours truly,

Paul G. Kitchen
Head of School
